2025 國立陽明交通大學醫學院「經濟評估與健康政策」系列講座 (單元二) — 癌症健康經濟與政策

2025 NYCU College of Medicine "Economic Evaluation and Health Policy" Lecture Series (Lecture 2) — Cancer Health Economics and Policy

● 講座摘要

癌症是美國及全球第二大死因,雖然近三十年來因治療進步與預防、篩檢的推廣使癌症存活率明顯提升,但不同族群間的差異仍舊存在,高昂的醫療費用亦造成病人與家庭沉重的經濟負擔,美國約有四至五成病人面臨所謂的「經濟毒性」。

本次系列講座第二單元特別邀請加州大學洛杉磯分校瓊森綜合癌症中心癌症健康經濟學研究計畫主任暨大衛格芬醫學院放射腫瘤學系以及公共衛生學院衛生政策與管理系Ya-Chen Tina Shih教授, 分享其於美國近期的癌症研究經驗, 內容涵蓋癌症發生率與死亡率趨勢、風險因子、預防與篩檢角色、醫療費用及經濟毒性等面向, 全面探討癌症疾病負擔。期能透過本講座說明流行病學與經濟評估研究如何分析癌症疾病負擔, 提供未來癌症經濟分析發展方向參考。

Cancer is the second leading cause of death in the US and worldwide. Although advances in treatment, prevention, and screening have improved cancer survival, disparities persist. In addition, rising costs of cancer care place tremendous financial burden on patients and families, with about 40–50% of cancer patients in the US experiencing "financial toxicity."

In this second lecture of the lecture series, we welcome Professor Ya-Chen Tina Shih, Director of the Program in Cancer Health Economics Research at UCLA and Professor of Health Economics at Department of Radiation Oncology, David Geffen School and Medicine and Department of Health Policy & Management, Fielding School of Public Health. Professor Shih will share recent U.S. research on cancer incidence and mortality trends, risk factors, prevention and screening, healthcare costs, and financial toxicity, offering participants valuable insights into how cancer epidemiology and economic evaluation research can inform policy and clinical decision makers and future directions in cancer health economics research.
